

The KP Granata Young Scientist Award

The Journal of Electromyography and Kinesiology and Elsevier in collaboration with ISEK announce the formation of The KP Granata Young Scientist Award to commemorate the tragic loss of Professor Granata, a distinguished member of the editorial board, a pioneer in kinesiology and a beloved teacher.

The award will be given to a young researcher who demonstrates a distinguished accomplishment during the first 5 years after obtaining his doctoral degree. It carries a certificate and a $ 250 draft. The winner will receive the award after delivering the associated lecture during the ISEK Congress and the manuscript published in the Journal of Electromyography and Kinesiology.

Interested junior scientists should apply by submitting an e-manuscript describing their research to the address below. The manuscript should be prepared according to the guidelines of the journal, complete with references and figures ready for publication. Manuscripts will be reviewed by a committee that will select the winner.

Deadline for submission; December 1, 2007
